What Chain Do I have? What's the difference?

Both carbide chains feature the same high quality, C-11 carbide teeth with 575,000 PSI, transvers rupture strenght. Both chains feature 1,800° F silver solder and the heaviest chasis available to a chain this size.

The difference lies only in the number of teeth.

The Sabretooth Carbide Chain features teeth with one space where we have inserted a anti-kickback safety link. This chain is designed for use on standard building materials.

The Cobra Carbide Chain features a little different design. Instead of having a space with a safety-link, the Cobra has a tooth on each link. This tooth allows the chain to last twice as long and cut through harder materials, making it perfect for highly commercial or industrial areas.

If you need further assistance in chain select, feel free to call us at 1-800-745-3282 and our friendly customer service department will be happy to assist you.
